
THE CAPACITY WORKBOOK

The Empty Vessel Practice

Nothing Owed • Nothing Owed Back • Right Capacity to Receive

A Companion to The Void • The Invisible Monastery

How to Use This Workbook

This workbook is not a checklist to complete. It is a mirror and a practice ground. The prompts are designed to reveal where you are still carrying debt — where you believe something is owed to you or you owe something to life. Each time you answer honestly, you expand the vessel. Each time you practice the capacity audit, you strengthen the muscle of receiving without negotiation.

Work through one section per day or per sitting. Return to the audits weekly. The goal is not perfection. The goal is honest capacity.

Section One: The Debt Inventory

List the debts you are still carrying. Be specific. Do not soften.

Debts I believe life / the universe / others owe me:

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____

Debts I believe I still owe to life / others / my past self:

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

What would it cost me to let these debts dissolve into the Void right now?

Section Two: The Three Capacities Audit

Rate your current capacity honestly (1 = collapsed / defended, 10 = spacious and honest).

Capacity	Current Rating (1-10)	What would raise it by 1 point?
Mental (holding complexity without story)	_____	_____
Physical (care of the vessel, sleep, nourishment)	_____	_____
Emotional (willingness to feel without managing)	_____	_____

Which capacity is currently the smallest bottleneck for receiving what you say you want?

Section Three: Daily Receiving Practice

Each evening for 7 days, complete the following:

Day ____ Date: _____

What did I receive today without having to earn it or explain why I deserved it?

Where did I still feel the need to justify or perform in order to receive?

What would it have looked like to receive that same thing from the Void — with nothing owed?

Repeat this for 7 consecutive days. Notice what shifts in your nervous system by day 4.

The Capacity Vow

I am willing to let the debts dissolve. I am willing to become a vessel large enough and empty enough to receive what the field has always been prepared to give. I do not need to be owed. I do not need to owe. I only need to be here, honest, and available.

Signature: _____ Date: _____

The Invisible Monastery • The Void Series